A Revenue Collector Who Riddles the Civil Servicers.

OTHERS SHOULD FOLLOW SUIT

Collector of Internal Revenue James D. Brady of the Richmond (Va.) District has defied the Civil Service Commission and the Internal Revenue branch of the Treasury seems to uphoid him in what ha has done.

Shortly after Collector Brady to hold of the office he gave the Deputies to understand that he intended to be Collect tor. He made the boid statement that in-asmuch as he was under bond and re-sponsible not only for what he did, but for what his Deputies did and failed to do, he proposed to know who those Dep-uties were, and see that they were men in whom he himself could piace explicit Collector Brady has set an example which it is thought other Collectors will follow.

The recent modification of the regulaions issued by the President related only to Stamp Deputies. That class only we to Stamp Deputies. That class only was taken out of the classified service. Collector Brady has found a way of getting rid of the other class. Under the recent decision of Judge, Jackson githe Federal Court of West Virginia it was held that the offices of Deputy United States Marshals were continuous, and that they continued to serve, desnite the chance in shals were continuous, such that the change in the head of the office. This decision was based upon the Civil Service Law. Comptroller Bowler, however, held that the men could not be paid unless they were reappointed by the Marahal.

Men the weight of the men could not be paid unless they were reappointed by the Marahal.

tor, although the Civil Service Commission has held that they are a continuing set of officers, as in the case of Deputy Marshals. Collector Brady thinks differently, and the Internal Revenue Department is of the same opinion. It is admitted, however, that Mr. Brady must go to the Commission and have names of candidates who have passed the examination certified up to him. These candidates must be residents of the District in which they are to serve. Here is where Collector Brady finds a way out of the situation and sets the pace for all other Collectors of the country.

When he entered upon the discharge of his duties he simply refused point blank to appoint new Deputies. When he was criticised for so doing he pointed to section 3148 of the Revised Statutes which says:

"That each Collector of Internal Revenue shali be authorized to appoint, by an instrument in writing under his own hand, as many Deputies as he may think proper, to be compensated for their ser vices by such allowance as shall be made
